School Outreach Initiative by Department of Microbiology

Fostering Scientific Curiosity and Hands-On Learning for Class VIII Students

26 September 2026 : The Department of Microbiology organized an engaging "School Connect Programme" on 26 September 2026 for Class VIII students of the CBSE School.

The initiative aimed to introduce young learners to the fascinating world of microorganisms through simple, interactive, and activity-based learning experiences. During the session, students toured the department's laboratories and gained insight into various practical applications of microbiology. Key concepts—including the diversity of microorganisms, their presence in daily surroundings, and their dual roles—were explained using relatable, real-life examples.

Emphasizing that microbes are far more than just disease-causing agents, the program highlighted their essential contributions to food production, agriculture, environmental sustainability, biotechnology, medicine, and human health. A major highlight was the hands-on demonstration segment, where students actively participated in practical activities to observe and better understand foundational microbiological concepts. The activity was coordinated by Dr. J. P. Rathod.

International Microorganism Day with Enthusiastic Educational Activities

Fostering Scientific Curiosity & Highlighting the Crucial Role of Microbes Across Diverse Fields

15 September 2026 : The Department of Microbiology celebrated International Microorganism Day with great enthusiasm. This year's event was themed "Microorganisms: Smallest Life Forms, Biggest Impact." The program was inaugurated in an innovative manner through the concept "Microscope Moment – Opening the Window to the Invisible World," where live microorganisms were showcased through microscopes. Mr. Abhishek Singh, Principal of the CBSE School, graced the occasion as the Chief Guest.

As part of the celebrations, a wide array of engaging activities and exhibitions were organized, including a Microbial Quiz, poster presentations, clay art, stone art, agar art, interactive games, and an attractive microorganism display. Through these informative sessions and interactive activities, students gained a deeper appreciation of the invaluable contributions of microorganisms to human health, agriculture, food science, environmental sustainability, biotechnology, and scientific research. The activity was coordinated by Dr. V. R. Kothari.

Prin. R. B. Deshmukh, Vice Prin. Dr. R. S. Surwase, and Vice Prin. Dr. P. V. Jadhav commended the Department of Microbiology for successfully organizing the insightful event.
